Church of St. Mary Magdalene

TWENTY-THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME SEPTEMBER 6, 2026

Jesus said to his disciples, “If your brother sins against you, go and tell him his fault between you and him alone. If he listens to you, you have won over your brother. If he does not listen, take one or two others along with you, so that every fact may be established on the testimony of two or three witnesses. If he refuses to listen to them, tell the church. If he refuses to listen even to the church, then treat him as you would a Gentile or a tax collector. Amen, I say to you, whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Again, amen, I say to you, if two of you agree on earth about anything for which they are to pray, it shall be granted to them by my heavenly Father. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.” (Matthew 18:15 - 20)

St. Mary Magdalene Mission Statement

We, the Eucharistic Community of St. Mary Magdalene, are called to conversion in Jesus Christ.

Our community life and worship are based on the Bible, the Sacraments, and the teachings of the Catholic Church.

Living the love of Christ impacts our moral, intellectual, and religious life, and makes us a caring community that brings hope to our families, neighborhood, and society.

Jesus Is Here - Come As You Are

Jesus is always available. Pray or sit and rest or have a little chat. He wants to be with you. He IS with you. Whatever your heart is feeling, He wants to meet you there. The church is open until 4:00pm weekdays and later on weekends. Come and see. Spend some time with Him.

Memorials

Please pray for the repose of the soul of

Helen Cuseo

Eternal rest grant unto her, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine upon her. May her soul and the souls of the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace.

Amen

TWENTY-THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Scriptural Reflection

During the first few months of marriage, the honeymoon period, the one we love may seem perfect to us. He or she can do nothing wrong. Soon, though, reality sets in and we start accumulating hurts. We may hurt one another knowingly or unknowingly. It's much the same in a family or a community. Sooner or later our love for one another is tested by sin and human weakness. Will we put up with the other's behavior or confront it? Which choice reflects true love?

Today Paul recalls some signs of true love; he reminds us what those who love will not do. The other Scriptures bring out some of the surprising signs of true love. Loving one another just might involve nagging, confronting, fighting, or telling family secrets. It will certainly involve mutual respect and acceptance, along with a healthy dose of prayer for each other. And true love will seek constantly to call forth the best in the ones we love.

Living God's Word

We might hope for a change of heart from someone we love or a member of our community. But first we must change our own hearts by forgiving and accepting the other in true love. True love begins with recognizing our own "faults" and softening our hearts toward the ones we love.

Pastor's Message

Dear Parishioners,

For your reflection I would like to share with you a brief passage from a statement of the bishops of the United States regarding the importance of Labor Day. The Bishops wrote: Labor Day is a holiday with an important, but sometimes forgotten purpose. It was established in New York in 1882 as a day to honor work and workers and also a time to celebrate the contributions of the American Labor Movement. For too many, Labor Day has become just another day off or a time to buy school supplies, rather than a day to honor the hard work of school teachers, janitors, cafeteria workers, and others. Unfortunately, it often takes a horrible mining disaster or a terrible attack like 9/11 to remind us of the everyday heroism and hard work of people who still labor under the earth, who go into burning buildings, or who contribute to the common good by their everyday work and enterprise. There are exceptions; many cities and towns have traditional Labor Day parades and a number of Catholic dioceses mark this holiday by celebrating the ties between the Church and the labor movement with a special Mass and prayers for workers. I hope in these brief reflections to recall the importance of Labor Day and remind us that the moral dimensions of work and workers' rights are at the center of our Catholic social tradition. As we gather this Labor Day weekend, we should not forget how our nation's economy and commerce, our standard of living, and even our time off are in many ways the hard won gains of workers organized into unions to bargain for decent wages, working conditions, and benefits, such as vacation time and health care coverage.

Let us also remember that too many people in our midst–and millions around the world—still lack decent work or fair wages, toil in terrible conditions, and have no real voice in their economic life. For example, more than 40 million people in our own nation lack genuine health care coverage. Our economy is strong in many ways, despite the serious and growing problems in the housing and credit markets. However, that strength is not shared as widely and deeply as our American tradition of "liberty and justice for all" and Catholic teaching on solidarity and human dignity would require.

Just as we need to remind ourselves as Americans that Labor Day is about workers and their unions, it is also important to remember as Catholics that the dignity of work and the rights of workers are central elements of Church teaching that continue to challenge all Catholics. For more than a century, the Church has insisted that "human work is a key, probably the essential key, to the whole social question". (Pope John Paul II, Laborem Exercens, 3). Our tradition has defended the right of workers to join together to secure decent work, wages, and a voice in economic life.

This year is the 58th Anniversary of Pope Paul VI's powerful encyclical, Populorum Progressio On the Development of Peoples. He called Catholics to defend the lives and dignity of poor and vulnerable workers in our own societies and around the world. Paul VI called us to be in solidarity with those who seek to "escape from hunger, misery, endemic disease, and ignorance."

This message of solidarity and the pursuit of the global common good builds on the tradition begun by Pope Leo XIII in Rerum Novarum in 1891 and extends through the Twentieth Century in a powerful series of papal encyclicals. It was embraced and expanded by the prophetic words and witness of Pope John Paul II, an apostle of solidarity, who constantly stood with workers and the poor. His writings called for a society of "work, of enterprise, and of participation" (Centesimus Annus, 35) and insisted that unions and other worker associations are an "indispensable element of social life."

Stewardship

They

"They cleaned up the park." "They put out fresh bread." "They fixed the elevator." Behind every "they" is a real person, who expended effort to do something in our world. Whether a woman, man, or young person, "they" may have been discontented and miserable, or happy and fulfilled, when they helped to produce a warm jacket, a box of cereal, or a bottle of shampoo. Look at any ordinary object and consider how many people it took to make it. A pencil began as a tree someone planted. Someone else cut the tree down; others hauled it away and more cut it to size, added the lead and eraser, packaged it, shipped it, and put it on the store shelves. "They" are constantly busy, millions of "them," ensuring that we have the things we need, from the electricity that powers our homes to the food we buy at the grocery store. "They" may never get a proper thank-you, because there is no real opportunity for us to say it directly. But even when we open our eyes to the multitude of "theys" in our lives, we are just looking at the tip of the iceberg. Every "they" is ultimately a smaller version of God. God is not the farmer harvesting the wheat or rice that will eventually find its way to our tables. Instead, God is the provider of the soil, the sun, and the rainfall that make sure the seedlings grow into a delicious, nutritious food. God made the farmer, and keeps his heart beating to perform his daily tasks. God is the essential "behind the scenes" person, the real presence behind every "they." God is behind everything in the entire universe. And when we finally find God, our lives become transformed with true gratitude.

Culture of Life Ministry Corner

How Does the Seamless Garment Relate to the Culture of Life?

The Seamless Garment or consistent ethic of life was popularized by Cardinal Joseph Bernardin in 1983 advocating for the protection of all human life. In 1995, Saint Pope John Paul II coined the term "Culture of Life" to underline the need to create a society that values human life, respects human intrinsic dignity, and protects the inalienable rights of all human persons from conception to natural death.

How do these two concepts relate to each other? The seamless garment metaphor originates in John's gospel (19:23) where it describes the tunic worn by Jesus – a garment woven of one piece. Like the tunic of Jesus, life issues cannot be separated without the whole premise unravelling. The culture of life must mean we are all for life in all its permutations and combinations. If we take scissors to the seamless garment, snipping out the parts that don't appeal to us – our claim to respect life quickly unravels. It is not prioritizing one life issue over another – it is merely applying the principles consistently. Respect human intrinsic dignity and protect and defend life.
